EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN]

Pacific Mail.

NEW YORK, Jan 30.—The P. M. S. S. Co. Directors to-day considered and adopted a quarterly report ending October 31st, not heretofore published. It is the document which has been referred to, [illegible] rumors in Wall street for the last two days, unfavorably affecting the stocks.

Kansas Senatorial Election.

TOPEKA, Jan 28.—The ballot for Senator to-day was no more satisfactory than yesterday, the vote being divided among a dozen candidates. Hudson, supported by the Grangers, leads with 11 [illegible], Harvey and Stover each 18, Plumb 30, the rest scattering. Necessary to a choice 70.

Resolutions of Censure on Senator Sumner to be Rescinded and Expunged by the Legislature of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Jan 29.—The Committee on Federal Relations in the Massachusetts Senate to-day reported in favor of rescinding the resolution censuring Sumner.

Duly Vindicated.

MEMPHIS, Jan 30.—Captain Reynard, Secretary of the Howard Association, who was charged by his jealous wife with embezzlement of Association funds, was released to-day, there not being a particle of evidence to sustain the charge.

Getting Ready.

NEW YORK, Jan 30.—The police arrangements for the mass meeting in Cooper Institute to-night are elaborate. The Superintendent is to command in person. The Central Police Detectives and fifty patrolmen will be in attendance in civil undress, and reserves at all stations to be held in readiness.

Meeting of the National Grange.

ST LOUIS, Jan 30.—The seventh annual Convention of the National Grange of Patrons of Husbandry meets here next Wednesday. Dudley W. Adams, President of the National Grange, has already arrived. The principal business of the Convention will be the revision of the ritual and perfecting the organization of the Grange. President Adams states that there are between 11,000 and 12,000 Granges in the country, with nearly one million members. The sessions of the Convention will probably be private.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Jan 29.—The House Banking and Currency Committee were ready to report Houghton's ninety per cent. gold bank circular bill to-day, but after reporting their general currency bill they were cut off from further action by the expiration of the morning hour. They will report Houghton's bill next Tuesday.

The naval appropriation bill to be reported to the Senate agrees to the House reduction of two-fifths of the civil list appropriations, the first marines to $1,500, and to all the other reductions except in appropriations for the Ordnance Bureau, the office of Brigadier General of marines to be abolished when a vacancy occurs. The total appropriations will be $2,000,000 less than the original estimates.

Loss to the United States by the Suspension of Clews & Co.

WASHINGTON, Jan 30.—A statement of accounts from Clews, Habicht & Co. shows that the Government balance with them at the time of their suspension was nearly $250,000, instead of $[illegible],000, as estimated at that time, owing to accumulating consular fees, of which they were depositaries, and accounts for which are rendered by Consular officers to the Treasury quarterly. The State and Treasury departments have not worked in harmony in the matter of Consular accountings, and among other proposed reforms in the Consular service is the taking of this matter out of the hands of the Secretary of State.

Nesmith's Speech on Reduction of the Army.

In the debate on the army appropriation bill in the House to-day Nesmith protested against the proposition for the reduction of the army, which he said was gotten up in accordance with the views of a set of humbug peace commissioners, whose idea of managing Indians was by preaching to them Christ and Him crucified. He said that if God Almighty had gone preaching in that wilderness he would not have kept his hair on his head twenty-four hours. [Laughter.] He defended frontiermen against the aspersions usually made against them, and declared the first effective missionary the Indians ever had was Miles Standish, and that his missionary work had been continued by Jackson, Sheridan and others. Congress might save a few million dollars by reducing the army, but every dollar saved would be responded to by the blood of frontiermen and by the wail of their widows and orphans.

The Territorial Delegations at Work.

WASHINGTON, Jan 29.—The Territorial delegations in Congress at a special meeting, determined to draw a bill relative to the incorporation and regulation of railroad companies in Territories, the provisions of which are somewhat different from that recently introduced in the Senate by Stewart. They also discussed the bills introduced in the Senate by Sargent and in the House by Page in regard to the sale of timber lands in California, Oregon and Washington Territory, which they propose to have amended so as to meet the wants of all Territories. The mining bill introduced in the two houses was objected to on account of the limited time given to miners in which to perfect the right to a patent. The Delegates have fixed Thursday of each week as their regular time of meeting.

After the Railroads.

CHICAGO, Jan 30.—A Times Washington special says when the House Judiciary Committee is next called an important bill will be reported, the object of which is to regulate relations between the Government and the Pacific Railroads. It is well known that these Companies are in default of payment of the interest to the amount of several million dollars. Luttrell has already introduced a bill authorizing and requiring the Attorney General to bring suits against these Companies to obtain this money.

Crounse of Nebraska has introduced a bill to declare all lands granted to railroad companies liable to State taxation.

Wilson of Indiana, introduced a bill last Monday amending the Pacific Railroad Act of 1862 so as to compel the Union Pacific Company and its branches to charge uniform rates for freights and passengers per mile, whether local or through traffic. The bill makes it unlawful for any officer or agent of the Company to grant special rates, privileges or drawbacks, or to discriminate in any way in the transaction of business. All these provisions are to be combined in one bill, which the Judiciary Committee will report next week, and which will undoubtedly become a law.

Kellogg Reaches for Warmoth.

WASHINGTON, Jan 30.—A special from New Orleans dated yesterday gives the report that Governor Kellogg has issued a requisition upon the Governor of the District of Columbia for the person of ex-Gov Warmoth. It is said that the case grows out of transactions connected with the Treasury when Warmoth was Governor of Louisiana. Warmoth's friends have heard nothing of such a requisition, nor did Gov. Warmoth yesterday know of it prior to his departure from New York en route for New Orleans.

GOLD HILL, Jan 30.—At 5 o'clock last evening Ed. Duffey, carman on 1200 foot level of Crown Point, had his upper jaw broken. The car which he was running was stopped by a piece of timber which fell across the track while the car was going down the grade, and when Duffy stooped to remove the timber the car started forward rapidly, catching his head between the upper edge of the car and the wooden timber overhead, with result stated.

In the District Court yesterday Thomas F. Miller, convicted of assault with intent to kill Jas. Lowry, was sentenced to two years in the State prison.

ARIZONA.

SAN DIEGO, Jan 30.—A Union's special from Yuma says that a brutal murder was committed last night. A party of teamsters armed with knives attacked a Mexican who requested them to leave the vicinity of his house. They stabbed him many times, finally cutting his throat and dancing on his body. The murdered man before being killed, shot and supposed fatally wounded one of the desperadoes. Two more were arrested to-day and escaped.

THE FUNERAL OF JAMES KING OF WM.

The funeral came off on Sunday, a most beautiful day. The churches were full, and as they let out the people as by a common understanding streamed toward the jail. All Telegraph Hill was crowded with people. I was out at my house on Harrison street when the Governor sent for me, and I found him on the roof of the International Hotel, watching the crowd as it gathered about the jail. We could see parties at the jail door. A battalion of armed men, with one or two guns, were drawn up in Broadway facing the jail. We saw a few men leave this line and advance to the jail door, which soon opened and admitted them. They soon came back leading Casey out to a carriage in waiting. Again they entered and returned leading out Cora, whom they placed in another carriage.

The procession then formed and escorted these two men publicly through the streets of San Francisco, to the Committee-rooms on Front street, and while King's funeral procession passed along Montgomery street toward the cemetery, these two men were swung out suspended to beams prepared beforehand as a part of the funeral ceremonies.

The Governor of the State and the civil authorities were powerless. They stood by and witnessed a scene that does not, in my judgment, reflect honor upon the city of San Francisco or the State of California. The whole subject was the occasion of a great deal of feeling. I thought then and think now that the Courts of San Francisco were then good and the only difficulty of administering criminal law was in getting good juries. Had the men who led off in that Committee helped to form good juries, Casey and Cora could have had a fair trial and would have been executed by the law instead of by a mob.—Gen. Sherman in February Overland Monthly.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Twenty passengers for Cassiar await the arrival of the Otter at Nanaimo, but it is doubtful whether they can find accommodation.

The Hon. Mr. Nathan, who represented Victoria in the Canadian Parliament last session, declines to be a candidate for re-election. He is at present in London.

On an island not fifty miles from Victoria School Trustees have just been chosen. Two out of the three are men living with Indian women, and the third does not know the meaning of a text-book, and when told that this world revolved, said: "You cannot make me believe that." [illegible] this school there is a respectable female teacher.

The remains of Henry [illegible], who was murdered by his son-in-law, were interred in the new cemetery on Sunday afternoon in the presence of a multitude of sorrowing friends. The body was removed at 2 o'clock from the Odd Fellows Hall. The procession was composed of members of the Order of Odd Fellows, the Fire Department and friends of deceased and family.

A Clinton dispatch of January [illegible] says: The weather in the upper country for the past nine days has been very severe, the thermometer carrying lower here than any time for the past two years. On Saturday morning and this morning it registered 38° below zero. Considerable snow has fallen all over the upper country. Weather moderating to-day. It is now (7 P. M.) 15° below zero. Stock are doing well.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan [illegible].—Thurman presented a petition of citizens of the District of Columbia asking Congress to appoint a committee to examine into the manner in which the affairs of the Government of the District of Columbia are conducted, especially those of the Board of Public Works, and that the petitioners be allowed to be present at such investigation. He moved to lay the petition on the table and to print it. The motion to print was finally referred to the Committee on Printing.

Wright, from the Finance Committee, reported favorably House bill to abolish the office of Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Placed on the calendar.

Wright introduced a bill to provide for cheap transportation by way of the great lakes of the Northwest. Referred. It provides for the incorporation of a company (the name of the proposed incorporators not mentioned) to construct a ship canal around Niagara Falls, the United States Government to endorse construction bonds to the extent of 80 per cent. of the cost of the undertaking, and to reserve the right to regulate its tolls.

Sherman, from the Finance Committee, reported with amendment the House bill authorizing coinage to be executed at Mints of the United States for foreign countries.

The resolution of the Finance Committee came up as the regular order. Stewart spoke of the evils of a depreciated currency, and advocated free banking on a gold basis. The issue of any more currency, he contended, would be an evil. No matter how much should be issued—$50,000,000 or $100,000,000—men would get in debt once more and another crash would follow. Let a step be taken toward specie payment in time of peace and prosperity. Congress ought not to encourage any speculation by dealing out more money. He thought we could stand the effects of a step toward a return to specie payment, but if a step be taken backward it could not be retraced.

Wright wanted to take up the bill to abolish the office of Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Logan objected.

Further consideration of the finance resolution was on motion of Sherman, postponed till Tuesday next.

The bill to pay the bonds of the Louisville and Portland Canal was taken up and passed.

Consideration of the Post Route bill was then resumed, and the pending amendment by Pratt to declare all bridges across navigable rivers and other waters of the United States and all public highways post routes was rejected.

Sargent offered an amendment, discontinuing the carrying of bound books, seeds and general merchandise through the mails after June 30th next, but he withdrew it at the solicitation of Ramsey, who objected to the introduction of general legislation into the bill. The bill passed and the Senate adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE.

The morning hour was occupied with the call on committees for report of a private character, which were referred to the Committee of the Whole.

The House then resumed consideration of the West Virginia contested election case. Discussion continued until two o'clock, when, by previous arrangement, the House proceeded to consideration of business pertaining to the District of Columbia. The only business reported was the bill with reference to the education of the blind of the District, and that was, after discussion, referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Adjourned.

To-morrow's session will be for general debate.

THE MARRIAGE AT ST. PETERSBURG.

NEW YORK, January 24.

A Herald cable special from St. Petersburg the 23d says: The marriage ceremony of the Duke of Edinburg and the Princess Marie commenced at noon in the presence of a vast assemblage of guests in the Winter Palace. The various galleries were filled with ladies sumptuously attired. The prevailing costumes were peculiarly Russian, the ladies mainly in velvet and diamonds, the men in uniform, with the exception of the American diplomats. After assembling, a procession was formed, with Grand Equerries, Chamberlains and other officers of the Court leading; then came the Emperor, Empress, Emperor of France and the Princess of Wales, Prince Imperial of Germany and Denmark and Prince Arthur; then the bride and bridegroom, who wore a Russian naval uniform. The bride was splendidly appareled in a long crimson velvet mantle trimmed with ermine, and wore a diamond coronet. Her train was borne by four pages; then followed an immense procession of the Imperial family, priests, friends of the Princess and court officials. The Imperial Russian Prince wore the uniform of the cuirassiers. The Prince of Wales wore a scarlet Russian uniform, the Prussian Prince Imperial that of a Russian Colonel. All were decorated with the Russian Order of St Andrew. The Princess of Wales was dressed in dark crimson velvet, with a diamond coronet, collar and pearl necklace. The Imperial German Princess was dressed in the same style. The Russian Princess's dress was blue velvet and gold. Prince Arthur's uniform was of the Rifle Brigade. All the bridal party wore silver wedding favors. The procession, upon reaching the Russian church, was received by the Metropolitan head of the Russian Church, the Holy Synod bearing crosses and sacred vessels and holy water. The Emperor conducted the bride and bridegroom to the middle of the church, assuming his station with the Empress immediately behind. Around the bridegroom stood Prince Arthur and the Grand Dukes. The wedding rings were borne on golden salvers and were deposited on the altar temporarily, until placed on the fingers of the bride and bridegroom. The magnificent chapel was illuminated by innumerable wax candles, the floor covered with velvet, crimson and gold carpet. The pillars and altars were covered with gold. The Greek marriage ceremony was unique. In the absence of music, chants and intoned prayers were given. During the service crowns were held suspended over the heads of the bridal pair, Prince Arthur holding the crown over the Duke of Edinburg, and Prince Sergius that over the bride. The Imperial confessor then said: "Thou servant of God, Alfred Ernest Edward, art crowned for this handmaiden of God, Marie Alexandrina, in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost." Arthur, becoming tired of holding the heavy crown, was relieved. Then the Epistle to the Ephesians, fifth chapter, 20th and 4 verses, was read. After the reading was concluded the gospel of the marriage at Cana of Galilee was read. The crowns were removed, and the married couple walked thrice around the raised dais, holding to the tip of the confessor's robe with one hand and a candle in the other. At the conclusion of this ceremony the sacramental cup was brought forward and blest and partaken of by the bridal pair, the confessor presenting a cross, which both kissed. The deacon gave an eloquent admonition of marriage duties. Afterwards the choir sung "Glory to Thee, O Lord," concluding with a benediction.

Thus ended the Greek service, and the procession then slowly formed, proceeding to the Hall Alexander for the Anglican service, Dean Stanley of Westminster Abbey officiated. The hall was rather small, the walls decorated with ancient pictures. Dean Stanley, who during the solemnization of the Greek service wore the Protestant [illegible] of divinity hand and gown, and who now appeared on the altar wearing the [illegible] surplice, with jeweled collar of the Order of Bath around his neck, was assisted by two resident English clergymen.

The Courier says the plan and purposes of the Olympia Railroad Union are now generally understood. Every one approves them. Seventeen of the citizens of Thurston county manage the Union. All express confidence in them.

He is, if living, about forty-four years of age, six feet in height, with black hair and fair complexion; is slightly crippled in the right foot. Any information concerning him will be thankfully received by his friends in Waverly.

Crofutt's Western World speaks of our State in the following favorable terms: "The discoveries and developments in the mining districts of Oregon during the last year speak well for this industry. Her main resource lies in her agricultural interest. Her fishing interests are largely on the increase. Her manufacturing interests are being steadily developed. Not much is done at present in railroad building. The health of the State, as a general thing, has been good."

The Salem Statesman of the 29th says: Nothing has transpired concerning the Great house mystery, and the citizens of Silverton are compelled to remain inactive in the matter at present in consequence of the high water. The mail carrier who came through on horseback this morning reports the water for some distance before reaching Pudding river bridge belly deep to a horse, and says when he crossed it had reached the stringers of the bridge and was still rising.

Speaking of the enlargement of the Quinealt Reservation the Port Townsend Argus says: "Twelve townships, with 36 sections each, cover an area of 432 square miles, and divided into claims of 160 acres each, would afford homes for 1,728 families. Yet the President has been induced by some party or parties who certainly have not the interest of that part of the Territory in view to reserve this vast tract of valuable land for about 250 or 300 Indians."

The Idaho Statesman of the 24th says: The weather turned cold and stormy on Thursday, and we have now six inches of snow, as much as we have had at any time this winter. Cattle men are fearful of this cold snap. Thus far stock has done well enough, but a few weeks of snow will kill off the old and very young stock. The most that can be done is to rustle them around and make them hunt for feed. Extra pains should be taken to see that they have water regularly.

On the night of December 17, 1873, John Tighe, a soldier belonging at the garrison, was seen at a saloon in Walla Walla somewhat under the influence of liquor, since which time he has never been seen or heard from. He sustained a good character, had money due him for service, and his time of enlistment had nearly expired. It is therefore not at all likely that he deserted, but it is quite probable that in attempting to make his way to the garrison he became bewildered and lost his way, and finally perished, as the night was extremely cold.

We are just in receipt of the Helena (Montana) Herald, containing full particulars of the great fire in that city on the 9th of January, of which the telegraph gave us some account at the time. The fire broke out in a Chinese gambling den, and as a high wind swept the flames toward the business part of the city, about half of the place was burned. One hundred and fifty buildings were destroyed, many of them fine stores filled with large stocks of goods, two National Banks, the Territorial library and other important institutions. Gans & Klein, dry goods merchants, were the heaviest losers, their stock being valued at $125,000 and their building at $35,000, all lost and nothing insured. The Herald represents that a very strong feeling existed at the time against the Chinese, and violent measures were feared. The insurance on the property destroyed seems to have been very light. The fire broke out nearly in the same spot that the great fire in 1869 began, and swept over nearly the same ground. Thus thrice has this city been terribly scathed with the fire, but the tone of the Herald leads us to believe that the energy and enterprise of Montanians will bring them through this ordeal, as they have come heretofore.

CITY.

How D[illegible] There?—In examining the stone ballasts which are brought here in vessels one often finds rocks of very rare, unique shape and formation So singular are many of these rocks that it is a very interesting study to the lover of geology to examine the heaps of rock as they are thrown out on the dock from the ships hold Prof Condon who delights in pursuing under all circumstances, geological investigations often spends hours when he visits the city in wandering about the docks with hammer in hand, breaking to fragments, here and there an irregular piece of stone In this manner he has often discovered new species of rock and many wonderful formations which were valuable acquisitions to his cabinet of the curious in nature Mr David Raffety of East Port and who for several years has been industriously engaged in collecting geological and mineralogical specimens has also been in the habit of examining the ballasts of ships Nor have his efforts been unrewarded in these researches Some time ago he obtained a number of very beautiful leaf impressions imbedded in solid rock Yesterday Mr Raffety discovered something which will perhaps puzzle the most erudite geologist to satisfactorily explain While looking among the ballasts he came across a spherically shaped stone, considerably larger than a man's head On picking it up he was surprised at its weight and to satisfy his curiosity broke the stone Imbedded in the center he found a twelve pound cannon ball which from appearances had been buried for a century or more All around the ball the stone had formed solidly to all appearances having literally grown about it Notwithstanding the piece of metal had been so long exposed to the elements it had oxydized but comparatively little The ballast in which it was found was brought from South America When and by whom was that cannon ball fired is the conundrum Who knows but what Pizzaro or some of the early Spanish invaders were they to rise from their graves could explain all about the circumstance Ball and stone will occupy a prominent place in his cabinet, where it can be examined by the curious or skeptical

Canyon Road.—A gentleman who resides along the Canyon road called on us yesterday and gave an account of the condition of the road During the heavy rains of last week, the stream over which the road crosses so frequently in winding through the canyon was swollen to such a hight that nearly all the bridges were swept away Trees were prostrated in many places across the road by the violence of the storm It has been almost an impossibility for teams to pass and repass During the week several wagons have been broken in vain attempts to get through Opposite the Poor Farm the stream has carried everything away and the road is wholly impassable to travel We are informed that no efforts have been made to clear out the obstructions during the present week The Canyon road is one of the principal thoroughfares leading into the city and is consequently much traveled As the road at present is impassable, the Supervisor of the district should attend to the matter at once and secure an early repair to the bridges and the removal of the prostrate trees and other obstructions.

Committee Meeting.—There will be a meeting this evening by the Committee appointed some weeks ago of Protection Company No 4 to make arrangements for giving a grand ball The object of the meeting will be to transact business pertaining to the forthcoming occasion The intention is to give the ball in connection with a parade, which will be given by the Company on the completion of the new engine house, when the engines will be formally housed The parade, usual on such occasions, will be held in the afternoon and the ball given in the evening at the new engine house The expectation was to have the new building finished by the 1st of next month but unavoidable delays have prevented its completion The ball will not be given for several weeks yet. Timely notice will be given of the affair

In Quarantine.—The cook employed on board the schooner Hera, which arrived here a few days ago had complained of feeling unwell ever since the vessel entered the river Soon after the schooner arrived here the cook fell quite sick and was unable to perform his duties On being visited yesterday morning by a physician and his symptoms examined it was decided that the man had the smallpox Chief Lappeus was notified immediately of the matter and the vessel was ordered into quarantine by the Committee on Health and Police The Hera was soon after towed away from the steamship company's dock down below the lower sawmill, where she is now As yet the case is not fully developed but there appears to be but little doubt about its being a genuine case The vessel will be kept in quarantine until all danger is passed

Unpleasant News.—When it was announced yesterday morning that the cook on board the schooner Hera had the smallpox, there was a perceptible "stir" among the teamsters employed hauling the freight away as rapidly as it came out of the vessel. A number of stevedores, who were engaged in discharging the cargo, also felt a little nervous over the news and gave the piles of freight a wide berth in sailors parlance Very soon however the vessel was towed away from the dock and every person felt a little more tranquil Not more than half the freight was discharged from the vessel but the remaining cargo will not be touched until it can be safely discharged and handled with impunity

None but Members.—At the last meeting of the Catholic Social Union it was decided by a vote of the Society that no gentleman will be admitted hereafter unless he be a member or becomes such at once This is but justice to those who are members, and who help to pay the expenses necessarily incurred Cards will be issued to the members which will admit them and their families to the meetings of the Union The ladies as already announced are admitted free

German Service.—The next of the series of German services will be held to morrow evening the 1st of February, at Trinity Church, corner of Oak and Sixth streets, beginning at 7 o clock The Rev John Rosenberg will officiate The sermon will have special reference to the German Aid Society an institution which does much good in a quiet way All Germans and others interested in these services are cordially invited to attend Seats free

Westward.—Three children arrived by the Ajax from Wyoming Territory for the Portland [illegible] St Helen's Hall and the Bishop Scott Grammar School This is rather reversing the order of things, as parents are generally in the habit of sending their children East to complete their education but we feel sure that the parents of these children have done well in securing the benefits of these Western schools for their sons and daughters

Under Arrest.—Five sailors belonging to the bark City of Lima were tried yesterday in the Police Court for wilful desertion from the vessel The trial of the case consumed the entire afternoon At the conclusion of the testimony the Court took the case under advisement until this morning We learn that these sailors have libelled the vessel from which they have deserted for wages

Overhauled.—For some time past the [illegible] clock has [illegible] been keeping as accurate time as was necessary and required constant attention to keep it running A few days ago all the machinery was taken to pieces and under the [illegible] of Mr I C Hare [illegible] thoroughly overhauled [illegible] [illegible] regard [illegible] of time

Washington County Taxes.—Sheriff Fozier of Washington county closed his books at the Occidental Hotel last evening, and returned to Hillsboro this morning The net valuation of the property in the county as assessed is $1,[illegible]812,[illegible] the total tax on which is $20,[illegible] Of these taxes a considerable portion is paid in this city and Mr Fozier makes an annual visit to this city for the convenience of tax payers and saving expense to them which might otherwise be incurred About twenty thousand dollars of the taxes have thus far been paid Mr S G Reed of this city pays the largest individual tax

Arrests for the Month.—The calendar at the Police Court shows that 143 arrests were made up to last evening Drunks and disorderlies 74 larceny [illegible] assault and battery 10 vagrancy 3 carrying concealed weapon [illegible] abusive language [illegible] indecent exposure 2 arson 1 desertion from ships 6 obstructing streets 2 defacing a building [illegible] running teams without license 3 selling liquors to minors 4 depositing broken glass on street 1

David Livingstone.—The sad news of the death of the great missionary and explorer having been confirmed Dr Lindsley will deliver a lecture on his life and labors in the Presbyterian Church to-morrow evening Ushers are always in attendance to conduct visitors and strangers to eligible seats

Commissions Received.—The following officers have received their commissions from the Governor of the State Joseph K Wiley of Portland elected Captain Co B Emmet Guard 2d Brigade State Militia John Storan elected 1st Lieut and Everett D Brown 2 Lieut of the same Company

New Superintendent.—Mr D I Budd a gentleman of extensive experience in staging etc has recently been appointed Superintendent of the street railway and will have entire control of the Company's affairs The new appointee will enter upon the discharge of his duties on the 1st proximo

Stockholders Meeting.—The stockholders of the Puget Sound Homestead Association will meet at the office of Terry, Woodward & Co, on Monday February 2d

Unitarian Church.—The evening service of this church will be omitted to-morrow the first Sunday of the month The communion service is at 3 30 o'clock

TELEGRAPH MATTERS.

Yesterday the line between Portland and Seattle was down and up to a late hour last evening the connection had not been effected

Dr Plummer, who returned from the Sound a few days ago, informs us that he found the line between Seattle and Victoria in a badly demoralized condition Northward from the former place, until the ocean is reached—a distance of about ninety miles—the country is principally covered with dense timber The line passes through these regions, which constantly alternate between heavy forests or tide marshes He found the line prostrated most of the distance The late rain and wind storm played havoc in its progress through these heavily timbered regions, felling trees in all directions Nothing but a narrow trail extends parallel with the line for that distance, so that provisions building and repairing material had to be transported on the backs of horses and men Dr Plummer set a gang of men to work at once to repair the line overland, while he went through by water to Victoria At present the line between Seattle and Victoria is up again This summer the Company propose to build a new line for that ninety miles

Jas Gamble Superintendent of the Pacific Division W U T Co wrote a letter a few days ago, to Dr Plummer in relation to the subject of the construction of a line between Portland and Astoria, which has of late been considerably agitated by prominent citizens of both places He instructed Mr Plummer not to take any decided steps until he had carefully gone over both the proposed routes and selected the most feasible one One of these lines goes via Forest Grove and from thence to Astoria on the south side of the Columbia and the other down by Cowlitz on the northern side Both these routes are spoken of in the event of the construction of the line When the weather will admit, Mr Plummer proposes to examine in person these competing routes and report to Mr Gamble their comparative advantages and disadvantages Mr Gamble also writes that the Company have no desire to speculate off the citizens of the two places If Portland and Astoria desire a line the Company will construct one and turn it over to the citizens at the actual cost whether that sum be $12,000 or $6 000

SOCIAL EVENTS.

The Grand Ball to be given by Protection Engine Company No 4 will not come off as early as anticipated owing to the fact that the new house will not be completed at the time expected

The social entertainment at the Good Templar Hall last evening was well attended The Scandinavian Society, under whose auspices the affair was given fitted up the cosy hall in excellent taste and provided good music to which the assembly danced with great spirit The managers were untiring in their efforts to provide those present with all the enjoyment possible

AMUSEMENTS.

The young folks carnival at the rink this afternoon will be a pleasing affair, and no doubt many will find it convenient to attend In the evening a trial of speed on rollers will take place Music on each occasion

This afternoon Jester the man with the talking hand, will give an entertainment for the little folks at Oro Fino Theater In the evening he will also give an entertainment. Mr Jester's performances are new to many of our citizens and the little folks particularly will enjoy it

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICES.

The pulpit of the First Congregational Church will be occupied in the morning by the Rev D B Gray At 7 30 P M the pastor, J D Eaton will deliver the third of the course of lectures on "Egyptian Antiquities" treating particularly of "Chronology and the Antiquity of Man Is the human race only 6 000 years old Negro faces are depicted on the monuments 4 000 years ago. REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

The following is the report of the special committee appointed two weeks ago by the Mayor, to examine into the condition of the cistern at the intersection of Stark and First streets The report was read before the Council at the last meeting of that body and adopted:

Portland Jan 28th

To the Honorable the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Portland Your special committee appointed at your last regular meeting and to whom was referred the communication of the Superintendent of Streets touching the unsafe condition of the intersection of First and Stark streets, would report, that said committee met Friday P M 23d inst and from sworn evidence of Wm O Bruen Chief Engineer of the Portland Fire Department of the contractor J L Parker also of the Superintendent of Streets R A Habersham came to the conclusion that the contractor for the laying of a main sewer in Stark street J E Parker, is at fault and to blame and would recommend that a sufficient sum to reimburse the city for all damages that have arisen (estimated by the Superintendent of Streets at $56 50) be retained from any moneys coming to or to be paid to said contractor out of Stark street sewer fund

Your committee would further refer your Honorable Body to the "General Conditions and Specifications for Sewerage work within the City of Portland forming part of the Contract of J L Parker for the laying of a Main Sewer in Stark Street" also to evidence taken from parties heretofore named in this report All of which together with this report are respectfully submitted to your Honorable Body by your special committee

TOAST AND TEA PARTY

The attendance last evening at Masonic Hall was not as large as we had reasons to anticipate in consequence of the inclemency of the weather and the counter attractions However the attendance was quite fair and the programme fully up to public expectation in respect to character and the manner of rendition The exercises commenced promptly at 8 o clock The first exercise on the programme was a piano solo charmingly rendered by Mrs. Carrie Dalton The song and chorus "There was an old lady and she lived over the sea" was sung by "Ye Ancient People" consisting of a number of ladies and gentlemen attired in the unique costumes of the riving New Englander a century ago This was followed by an original poem entitled "A Hundred Years Ago" read by Master Willie Duniway Father Harmon next favored the audience with a Revolutionary Volunteer dressed in suitable costume Mrs A J Duniway then read an interesting and appropriate "Open letter to the Boston Commonwealth" from the pen of Mrs [illegible] The "Beautiful Snow" came next on the programme but the person who was to recite it not being present Sheridan's Ride was substituted which was recited by Mr H Breeden Dr J B Pilkington next read in an excellent manner that beautiful poem from the pen of Will Carlton, "Out of the Old House into the New" "An Old Ballad" was sung by Miss Peters (Ye Ancient Belle) in costume which occasioned no little merriment Miss Clara Duniway (Modern Belle) sang very effectively a "New Ballad" which won for the young lady an encore Thomas Hood's beautiful poem "The Bridge of Sighs" was faultlessly we might say exquisitely recited by Mrs Smith Miss Carrie Dalton read with good elocutionary effect and in a clear tone of voice Montgomery's "Arnold Winkelried" which elicited rounds of applause The next which followed was a colloquy rendered by Young America represented by Julius Thielsen Brother Jonathan by Frank Owen and Aunt Columbia personated by Miss Julia Bailey The concluding exercise of the evening consisted of the familiar old air "America" after which the audience was dismissed

A long table extended through the hall covered with a bountiful supply of edibles to which all were invited to partake Many of the audience remained to supper

The entertainment will be continued through this evening with an entire change of programme, which will consist in part of chorus "The Might with the Right" by ancient people reading "Legend of Lake Erie" solo, "King Arthur's Pudding" reading "The Baron's Last Banquet" etc etc As the inclement weather of last night kept many away who had bought tickets of admission it is deemed advisable to repeat a portion of the first programme including "The Yankee Volunteer" by elderly gentleman "Brother Jonathan and Aunt Columbia's" colloquy and solos by ancient and modern belles

One of the belles of Washington takes a promenade on the avenue every afternoon with her pet dog who is very large The dog wears a collar the chain of which is attached to the girl's chatelaine Of course the dog has the same propensities that other dogs have of pursuing an uneven course on the street and as he is the strongest the chain attachment causes the young lady to diverge from pursuing the even tenor of her way and to be dragged hither and thither in a most undignified manner It is a case of the tail wagging the dog

The paper to be started by M H Abbott at Pendleton will be called the Tribune

The Foremost Tonic of the Age.

Taking into consideration the character of its vouchers the history of its cures and its immense annual sales Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be fairly entitled the Foremost Tonic of the Age It is not only a tonic but a constitutional and local alterative and its tendency is to substitute healthy for diseased action, throughout the system. If the stomach is feeble and torpid it produces a vitalizing impression upon its mucous tissues No sooner has the dyspeptic swallowed a dose of it than he knows by his sensations that his stomach has received an accession of vigor It increases the desire for food and the ability to digest and assimilate it If the liver is derelict it improves the condition of the organ and imparts to it a new and healthful impulse. The bowels being obstructed it promotes the flow of bile into the intestinal canal and thereby relieves them and re-establishes their natural action Its effect upon the brain the nerves and the kidneys is equally salutary In short it tones, alters and regulates the whole system

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 31, 1874

HORRID MISS LEIGH

Tom Luttrell, aged twenty-four, was a thoroughly good fellow, good tempered, good looking, and heir to a good property; but he had one sorrow—he was engaged to a girl he had never seen.

[illegible] years before a dispute had arisen [illegible] the Hillingdon estate of Leicester[illegible] to which Mr Luttrell—Tom's father—and [illegible] Carnworth Leigh both laid claim. [illegible] seemed inevitable, and the legal [illegible] had begun to prick up its ears, when one morning Mr Luttrell received the following note:

DEAR LUTTRELL—You and I have been good friends all our lives, and there is no man living for whom I have a greater esteem than for yourself. Cannot we, then, settle this wretched business without troubling those infernal lawyers? My uncle Haughton Leigh had a suit that lasted him twenty years and killed him in the end. Now listen to me: my daughter Nellie will have all I've got at my death, except Barfield, which goes to Jack's [illegible]. Why shouldn't she marry your boy Tom? Let the property alone for the next ten years. [illegible] Nellie will be eighteen and Tom four and twenty—if they like to marry, then well and good; if either should decline to carry out the arrangement, let the property go to the other.

This is a rough idea of my plan, which Jackson, your lawyer, could soon put into shape. What do you say? Yours, &c., CARNWORTH LEIGH, Barfield.

To this proposition Mr. Luttrell agreed, and Tom found himself an engaged man at fourteen. Soon after this Mr. Leigh was obliged to leave England for his health, and for many years he resided entirely on the Continent. So it happened that Tom and his future bride had never met.

About a month before the time fixed for his decision Tom betook himself to a small inn in the village of Settlebourn, near Stockford, nominally to fish, but in reality to escape from his father's arguments and to get a little time to himself for quiet reflection, while he soothed his wretched soul with tobacco.

One day as he lay lazily smoking by the silver Beck something fell from a high bank above him and dropped lightly on the water, while a girl's voice exclaimed:

"Oh, my gracious, my hat!"

Tom looked and saw a very neat little hat floating boat like down the stream.

"Bother the young woman," he grumbled. "I suppose, now, she'll expect me to fetch it!"

As he rose he looked up to the spot from which the voice had proceeded and saw a girl whose beauty surprised him. She stood bareheaded on the bank, gazing with a look of comic dismay after the fast receding hat, and Tom had an opportunity of examining critically, from the little head, with its crisp, brown hair disordered by the wind, to the slim ankles which her position revealed as she stood above him.

Running some yards down the bank he stepped out upon an old willow, which protruded over the stream, and waited in the hope that the current would bring the hat within his reach. He was not disappointed, and in a few minutes more he was again on terra firma with his prize.

"I must make friends with this young person," he thought, as he carefully dried the dripping feather with his handkerchief.

The fair stranger had watched his efforts from her elevated post, and smiled sweetly on him as he climbed the bank with his recovered treasure. She had evidently been sketching, for her materials were scattered in picturesque confusion around her.

"I hope it's not much damaged," said Tom, as he looked rather ruefully at the result of his manipulations. "I'm afraid the feather's in a bad way."

"Oh, it doesn't matter in the least, thanks. How kind of you to take so much trouble. But for you I must have walked home bareheaded."

"I wouldn't put it on just yet," Tom said. "Let it lie in the sun a little and dry, while you go on with your work."

"But suppose it starts off again, when there's no one to recover it for me?" She suggested.

"Let me guard it, then, and you can work in peace. You are sketching, I see; may I look?"

"Oh yes, but it's a miserable failure I'm afraid," she said, laughing, as she handed it to him. Tom examined it, and being a bit of an amateur himself proceeded to criticise, and, finally, to instruct. He found the girl very charming; she seemed so delightfully free from all conventionality, without at all resembling his bete noir, the fast girl.

They grew quite confidential as the lesson proceeded, and were amazed when, on consulting watches, they discovered that it was half past six.

"I must fly," she said, "or I shall be late for dinner, and Sir John can't stand that."

"Have you far to go?" asked Tom, craftily.

"About a mile. I'm staying at Newlands. Good by. No, I can carry them, thanks, I couldn't think of troubling you any more. Good-by," and she was off.

Tom went to his room thinking a great deal about his new friend, wondering where the charms lay which even more than her beauty had fascinated him. "Perhaps it's dress," he thought; "she dresses better than any woman I ever saw, and then her boots." Here he lit a cigar and fell into a dream about the said boots and about the little white hand which had worked so industriously and confidingly under the direction of his big brown paw. All the next day he wandered by the river, but she came not. That evening he was restless and ill tempered with his hostess and every one who approached him.

The day after he was more fortunate. She was sitting in the old spot, and greeted him smilingly.

"You're just in time," she said. "Look at my tree; isn't it like those bright green cauliflowers you see in the pickle bottles?"

Tom sat down and set to work on the refractory tree while she watched him.

"I say," said she at last, "isn't this dreadfully improper?"

"Which?" asked Tom, working away vigorously.

"Why, you and me," she replied, ungrammatically. "We've never been introduced, and I don't in the least know who you are or anything about you. Lady Turnbull would have a fit if she knew it."

"Let me introduce myself," said Tom, laughing. "My name is Luttrell—Tom Luttrell; or, if you prefer it, Thomas Curson Alvanley Luttrell."

If she had not been sitting behind him Tom must have noticed the flush which spread over her face at this announcement. After a pause, she said slowly:

"So you're Tom Luttrell?"

"Yes," said he, looking up. "What do you know of me?"

"There is a young lady staying at Newlands who is a great friend of mine; she has told me about you."

"Indeed. And what's her name?"

"Miss Leigh—Nellie Leigh."

It was Tom's turn to flush now. "Miss Leigh!" he repeated. "Good heavens, you don't mean to say she is in the neighborhood?"

"You don't seem fond of her," she said quietly.

Tom painted viciously. "I hate fast girls," he said at last.

"How do you know she's fast? You never saw her."

"I've heard about her," Tom said gloomily.

"What have you heard about her?" demanded his companion, sharply.

"Why, there was Earnest Browne; he met her a little while ago. She talked slang the whole time to him and—and swore, I think he said, and wanted to smoke. Then Tiverton told me she was the best hand at quoting Artemus Ward he ever heard. Bah! I hate a girl that quotes Artemus Ward," and Tom switched viciously at the dandelions with his cane.

His companion watched him with a mischievous smile.

"I wish you'd be less reckless with that weapon," she said; "you'll upset my water directly, and then you'll have to go and get some more."

"Now, don't you begin it," Tom pleaded.

"Why not? I like Artemus."

Tom shrugged his shoulders.

"Well," his tormenter continued, "have you any other fault to find with your bride?"

"She's not my bride."

"But she will be."

"[illegible] I'm bothered if she will," Tom broke out vehemently.

"Will you buy your freedom with H[illegible] and seven thousand a year?"

"Aye, and think it cheap at that price."

"Complimentary to Miss Leigh. Shall I tell her?"

"If you like—but never mind Miss Leigh. You've not told me your name yet," said Tom, after a while.

"My name?" she repeated; "oh, never mind my name."

"But I do mind your name. Won't you tell me?"

"My name is Nellie too," she said musingly.

"Shall I call you Nellie, then?" he asked.

"Certainly not," she said coldly, and recommenced painting vigorously. He was getting on too fast.

[illegible]

"And will you allow me to carry your things?" asked Tom.

[illegible] ladies will be sometimes, and positively refused to allow him to do any such thing. Then ensued a struggle for the "things," which were, however, captured by Tom after a short resistance.

She turned and walked majestically away. Tom gathered up the implements with a grin and followed her. When he came up to her she was sitting on a stile, looking dreamily on the ground. She raised her eyes as he approached.

"Mr. Luttrell," she said, "I want to speak to you seriously."

Tom deposited his burden on the ground, sat himself on a log facing her, and waited solemnly.

"I want to know if you're quite determined not to marry Miss Leigh."

"I am," he replied, looking steadily at her and tapping his teeth with her H. B. pencil.

"Since when?" He hesitated.

"Since when?" she repeated imperiously.

Tom began to dig little holes with his stick.

"Well, within the last few days," he said at last.

If he had been looking at her he might have seen the smile and blush of pleasure which lit up her face as he spoke.

"You see," he continued, "it's my father's marriage, not mine; and a man likes to choose his own wife. I dare say there's no real harm in the young person. If she's your friend it speaks well for her, but still——"

"But still what? You've never seen her; how can you tell you won't like her?"

Tom became more and more absorbed in his excavations.

"The truth is," he blurted out between the digs, "the truth is that lately, quite lately, I think I've seen the only girl I shall ever care to ask to be my wife," and he looked suddenly up at her.

She rose confused, began to consult her watch earnestly.

"I must go, really. Please give me my things. This is the park boundary, and so I won't trouble you any more."

She sprang over the stile as she spoke, interposing it between them as they said adieu.

"When shall I see you again?" he asked as he held her hand at parting. She allowed it to linger in his as she answered—

"Oh, soon, I dare say; perhaps when you least expect it." And gently returning the pressure of his hand, she turned away. After a few steps she looked back.

"Any message to Miss Leigh?" she asked, mockingly.

"Oh, confound Miss Leigh!" growled Tom. "I wish she was in Otaheite." Then, seating himself on the stile, he lit a cigar and watched her graceful figure till he could see it no longer. Suddenly he smote his thigh—"By Jove! I never got her name after all," he said.

Immediately on arriving at his inn he commenced a cross-examination of his hostess, by which he learned two facts: Firstly, that Newlands was the property of Sir John Turnbull, and secondly, that there were two young ladies staying there, Miss Leigh and Miss Harding.

Next day saw him speeding in a hansom from Paddington to his father's house in Brook street, intent on destroying that worthy old gentleman's peace of mind by the announcement of his determination to give up Miss Leigh and Hillingdon.

"Is my father in, Simms?" he asked of the butler, when that functionary appeared to attend his young master.

"No, sir. Mr. Luttrell went out with Mr. Leigh just after lunch."

"Mr. Leigh? Is he here?"

"Yes, sir. Mr. and Miss Leigh arrived this morning from the country."

"The deuce!" said Tom; "they haunt me wherever I go," and he retired precipitately to his own den.

"Bring me something to eat here, Simms, and don't let Miss Leigh know that I am in the house."

By the time he had finished his lunch his mind was made up. Selecting a hugely crested sheet of stiff note paper, so as to give the document an official character, he sat down, squared his elbows and commenced to write. The following epistle was the result of his efforts:

MY DEAR MISS LEIGH—For the first time I address you, personally, though you doubtless must have been for some time aware of the link which in some way connects us. The time has now arrived when our decision must be made in regard to our future—whether we shall go through life together or separate at once and forever. I will not conceal from you, my dear Miss Leigh, that for some years I have looked on you as my destined bride, and have considered myself fortunate in the prospect of an alliance with one of whose beauty and goodness I have heard so much. It is but quite recently that I have discovered that my heart is no longer mine to dispose of, and I now feel that to urge you to fulfill our engagement would be to insure a life of misery for both of us. Let us then, separate without a personal interview, which would only cause unnecessary embarrassment. As to Hillingdon, I resign it to you willingly, feeling sure that you would make a better mistress than I should a master.

Trusting, then, some day to meet you as the bride of some one more worthy to possess you than myself, I am, my dear Miss Leigh, your sincere friend,

THOMAS CURZON LUTTRELL.

"That'll do, I think. I hope it won't smell of tobacco. Simms," as that worthy answered the bell, "take this to Miss Leigh, with my compliments."

Simms was too well trained to show surprise at anything; he bowed and went. In ten minutes he returned.

"Miss Leigh's compliments, sir, and would you speak to her in the drawing room?"

"Oh, hang it!" said Tom; but there was no escape. The drawing room was darkened to exclude the afternoon sun, but Tom discovered a white figure at the far end, which rose and bowed as he advanced.

"I am delighted, Miss Leigh," he began, "to have the pleasure—— Hulloa! Miss Harding! You here?"

"Miss who?" said the laughing voice of his Settlebourne friend. "I am not Miss Harding."

"Then who in the name of goodness are you?" he demanded eagerly.

She looked down demurely.

"I'm that horrid Miss Leigh, as you called me the other day."

Tom sat down and stared at her; presently he broke into a great laugh.

"Oh, it's all very well to laugh," he said in an injured tone.

In a moment more he was kneeling by her chair, looking up into her eyes.

"Miss Leigh—Nellie——"

"I told you not to call me Nellie, yesterday," she said tartly.

"Yes, but yesterday isn't to-day; we're engaged now."

"Engaged, sir? What, after this?"

"Oh, hang the letter. You know I love you to distraction. You are your own only rival in my love, and you will marry me, dear, won't you?"

"Certainly not. You said I was fast and slangy, and that Hillingdon would be a cheap price to pay to get rid of me. And then this letter! Let go my hand—how dare you, sir! Be quiet, Mr. Luttrell. Tom, don't!"

But Tom was not to be denied. After this spirited resistance Miss Leigh surrendered ignominiously.

"Tom," she whispered, as her head lay on his shoulder, "do you really care for me?" (Kisses and protestations.)

"And you really want to marry me?" (More kisses and protestations.)

"Then," and her voice sank lower yet, "then take down the card for [illegible] to a single gentleman."

[illegible] What [illegible] down the highest rate of interest [illegible] question that [illegible] [illegible] State [illegible] of the present [illegible] [illegible] warehouse [illegible]. It is well known that [illegible] warehouses contain large [illegible] where [illegible] and [illegible] bank [illegible] capitalists dislike [illegible] warehouse receipts. [illegible] and the failure [illegible] considerable capital [illegible] warehouse receipt is [illegible] first class paper, and banks readily loan on the same. Were every warehouse in the city bonded there would be a large increase of collateral security in the market and corresponding increase in the amount of available capital, all of which would tend to result in a lower rate of interest. It is not necessary to expatiate on the benefits that would follow a lower rate of interest here. Everybody knows that such a condition of things would remove one of the most insuperable barriers that now exists against the successful establishment of manufacturing industries here. The development of this element of prosperity is a thing to be compassed at all hazards, for without it all other business industries must languish.

Miscellaneous.

The important interest of pork packing appears to be in a very flourishing condition. The number of swine packed thus far this season in Chicago, Cincinnati, St Louis, Louisville, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Peoria (Ill.) and Des Moines (Iowa) is [illegible], or [illegible] more than at the same period last season. Returns from a dozen smaller packing points in Iowa and Indiana all show an increase in the number packed over the same period last year. There is also more of a cash trade than last year and a better demand for cash products.

Perhaps of all the lessons which the past year has taught the warning it gave people who wish to invest their surplus savings to beware of new railroad schemes is the most valuable. Railroad extension had gone on for years in undeveloped portions of the country and money had been raised in the United States and in Europe to extend the great iron system everywhere. But numbers of the roads did not pay and probably many of them never will. The entire number of railroads, old and new, at present in default, is stated to be one hundred and fifteen, representing an indebtedness on interest account of more than twenty-seven million dollars. In the future these enterprises will have to be remarkably promising to induce people to invest money in them.

The statistics in the St. Louis Republican's annual review of the past year show a most gratifying progress in the manufacture of iron in the State of Missouri, an industry for which it possesses peculiar advantages. The extraordinary progress made will be seen by comparing the last year with 1870, in which year the United States census reported in Missouri fifteen blast furnaces employing a capital of $1,914,000 and yielding a product of $3,[illegible]. In 187[illegible] it had twelve establishments with eighteen furnaces, $[illegible] capital, employing 2,121 hands, paying $[illegible] in wages and yielding 100,000 tons of pig iron, valued at $[illegible] and 120,000 tons of rail, valued at $1,008,000, making a total product for the year of $[illegible].

The American Iron and Steel Association have ascertained by a thorough canvass of the country that there are in the United States 561 blast furnaces in working condition, capable of an annual production of 4,000,000 tons of pig iron, a quantity greater than the country can consume at present, and these furnaces, encouraged by the present demand for iron, will go to work, so that before next fall the demand will be supplied and another cessation will be occasioned.

The total shipments of boots and shoes from Boston last year reached 1,[illegible] cases, against 1,4[illegible] for the same period last year. The growth of the trade since 1860 has been very rapid, the number of cases shipped in that year being but 6[illegible], an amount then considered large.

A financial crisis of the most severe character at present exists in Cuba. Commercial confidence seems almost at an end; prices of necessaries are rising enormously every day, and some of the newspapers have been compelled to suspend publication for want of the means to pay their hands. The drain upon the resources of the country caused by the insurrection has been so steady and long continued that it would almost appear as though the Cubans were upon their last financial legs. Gold has been steadily going out of circulation and now is at an immense premium, while confidence in the paper currency is so shaken that many people refuse to take it at any price.

The newspapers of Sweden are complaining of the emigration from that country to America, the official reports showing that [illegible] persons have left since 1861. The increase of agricultural, manufacturing, mechanical and mercantile pursuits, with their numerous internal improvements, they allege, require the labor of all the [illegible].

Shipping Intelligence

The schooner Hera lies in quarantine below the city.

The City of Lima is securing cargo for Europe.

The barks Coloma, Silver Cloud and Etta Stewart will probably be the next wheat vessels to arrive and will probably be here within ten days. They will carry an aggregate of over [illegible] tons.

The schooner [illegible] has arrived and after discharging her cargo of [illegible] merchandise will load with produce for a return trip to San Francisco.

The high water in the river will give vessel dispatch in receiving their cargoes.

The steamship [illegible] from San Francisco arrived at [illegible] o'clock this evening with a full freight and passenger list.

MEDICAL.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, [illegible] Stricture, Syphilis [illegible] Seminal Weakness, Impotence, Skin Diseases [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal [illegible] of Europe and has resumed his [illegible] at his Dispensary, Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies and has [illegible] with increased facilities for the alleviation of [illegible].

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, male and female, are there who are suffering a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at their pale emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians and friends attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure them in every case, without mercury or any injury to health. It is important to those who are afflicted [illegible] those who are interested in the welfare of their friends to be careful, for the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strong inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating the disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

Married Men,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DR. GIBBON is responsible and will give to each patient a written instrument binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge.

Cured at Home

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By enclosing Ten Dollars coin in a registered letter through the Post-office, or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who with bogus diplomas, certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets, for as advertising physicians, in eight cases out of ten, are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus diplomas, certificates, pretended patients' letters etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Post office Box 1,957. REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the DAILY OREGONIAN. jy6dtp
